Summary Biography

Daniel Groves is the CEO of Construction Industry Resources, LLC (CIR).

For the past decade, CIR has been providing market intelligence and project risk mitigation solutions for owners, labor providers and other project stakeholders; including the Construction Labor Market Analyzer® (CLMA®), the Contractor's Workforce Development Assessment (CWDA), the Labor Risk Index (LRI) and the Labor Risk Management program (LRM). Mr. Groves was named by ENR Magazine as a global Top 25 Newsmaker for developing the CLMA® platform, the market leader for project labor risk analytics and risk management.

Mr. Groves is also the Director for Strategic Initiatives and workforce consultant for the Construction Users Roundtable (CURT), an international owner organization of national and global companies representing about $200 billion in annual construction spending. His work at CURT focuses on metrics, benchmarking and deployment of best practices, helping owners achieve the most productive use of every capital dollar.

Mr. Groves holds degrees from Asbury University in Kentucky in the fields of accounting and business management and has been lending his expertise to the industrial construction marketplace since 2007 when he began working with CURT on urgent workforce related issues. Mr. Groves resides in Lexington, Kentucky with his wife and two sons.
